The new bridge opened today. It is terrible. It is much narrower than the old one. It is also much more steeper. And, there is no room on the sides for walkers or bicyclist.

Hi Susan,

I read your email & got curious, so I took a ride over the new bridge. It certainly is a lot different from the old one, but this is not the final version, but a transitional one. Looks like there will be room on the West side for pedestrians and I'm pretty sure the final version will be wider as well, since there appears to be room of both sides of the K-rails for additional roadway.

The bigger concern for me is how clogged Ave. 26 has become all of a sudden, but I'm going to be moving soon and it won't be an issue. I'm pretty sure they'll be restriping the street to make things clearer; for example, apparently the Northbound right-hand lane where Home Depot is is now no longer only for turning onto the Southbound 110, for example. Hopefully clarifying all that will improve the situation, but that's just a busy intersection especially at rush hour.

Thanks for the heads-up!

Cheers,
JV
